प्रश्न क्र.

(3) Means of communication - Science has given us wonderful means of communication as telegrams, telephone, mobile-phone; etc. Through wireless we can talk to a person at a distance of thousands of miles. Mobile-phone and internet have been a great asset even the poorest and humblest can afford them and remain in touch with his friends and relatives all over the world.

(4) Means of travelling - Science has given us wonderful means of travelling as buses, cars, motor-cycles etc. By metro-trains we can reach anywhere through the city within seconds. It is the great wonder that the man has walked on the surface of the moon.

प्रश्न क्र.

(5) Wonders of electricity - Electricity is the greatest wonder of science.

- It has changed night into day.
- It cools our rooms in summer and warms them in winter.
- It runs our metro-trains.
- It cooks our food.
- It washes our clothes.

(6) Recreation - Science has given us wonderful means of recreation as CD, DVD, cinema, radio, video games etc. The cinema is the cheapest and most popular means of entertainment.

(7) As a curse - Everything has two sides, science has also darkside. The inventions and production of atom bombs and other dangerous weapons are threal to humanity of the world. They can destroy big cities and villages in a seconds. The man has forgotten God and his religion. Big factories and machines have made atmosphere polluted.

(8) Conclusion - To count all the blessings and curses of science is very difficult. In short we can say that science is like a jinn who can mang gifts but if uncontrolled it has power to destroy humanity. In fact, there his nothing wrong with science. It is up to man how he uses it. It should never be used in war and other destructive purpose. Science is a good servant but a bad master. So, we can say that science is blessing and curse both.
